Whet your appetite for this southern Italian adventure. Kissed by the Adriatic sun, Apulia has witnessed the comings and goings of numerous peoples. Settle into Polignano a Mare, a town with a decisively Greek feel. Travel along the Puglian coast and visit hilltop towns above aquamarine seas. Sample simple, but exquisite cuisine crafted from the region's seafood, meats, olive oil, pastas and wine. From the Sassi di Matera cave houses and the conical Trulli to medieval forts and an awe-inspiring Roman amphitheater, Apulia's architectural treasures will amaze and delight. It's easy to see why this sun-bleached land of olive trees and wind-swept, Adriatic coastline has been settled, and contended for, since time immemorial.
